Goodfellow pulls together for the CFC

Members from the 17th Security Forces, 17th Civil Engineer and 17th Mission Support Squadrons compete as one team during the first ever Goodfellow Fire Truck Pull Sept. 22 on the south-bound-traffic lane of Kearney Boulevard. The group was one of seven teams that competed in the event designed to raise funds for the local Combined Federal Campaign.

The seven teams of 8 to 11 pullers competed against each other by pulling an 18,000 pound-fire truck 15 feet in the quickest time. Teams A and B from the 312th Training Squadron advanced to the second round of competition by posting the two fastest times in the first round.

In the second and final round, the 312's Team A defeated their fellow "Fire Dawgs" from Team B by less than half a second with a blazing time of 11.78 seconds.

All competitors received a gift certificate for their participation.

The event was a huge success according to Col. Stephen Czerwinski, 17th Mission Support Group commander, who enthusiastically announced to participants and spectators that Goodfellow was the first installation to not just meet their CFC fundraising goal, but to exceed it.

Col. Scott Bethel, 17th Training Wing commander, was on hand to give thanks to all who helped make the competition a reality. Special thanks was also given to 2nd Lt. Lidia Iyassu for coordinating the fundraising event. (Cutline by Airman 1st Class Luis Loza Gutierrez. Photo by Airman 1st Class Kamaile Chan.)

Goodfellow 1st in AETC to meet CFC goal

BY STAFF SGT. CARISSA LEE

EDITOR

With less than a week since the official kickoff for the 2006 Combined Federal Campaign passed, Goodfellow AFB has already met its goal.

Even more impressive news-according to Col. Stephen Czerwinski, 17th Mission Support Group commander, Goodfellow is the first base in Air Education and Training Command to surpass its goal. However, even though the base has met its numerical amount for the year, it doesn't stop there. "We've done much good already, and I encourage those of you who haven't given yet to do so--we can still do more to help out these fine charities," the colonel added.

According to the base's CFC chairperson, 2nd Lt. Timothy Lange, some squadrons met their assigned goals within the first day of the campaign, and the whole base met the goal by Sept. 22. The lieutenant credited the hard work by unit keyworkers for helping achieve this milestone. "The effort was so successful thanks to the keyworkers and the men and women of Goodfellow who really pulled out the stops this year by not only meeting the base goals, but also exceeding it in such a short period of time," he said.

Pledges made by federal civilian, postal and military donors during the campaign season, which runs through Dec. 15, support eligible non-profit organizations that provide health and human service benefits throughout the world. Several organizations on Goodfellow AFB are also beneficiaries of the contributions.

"I am very proud of the generosity of the men and women of Goodfellow AFB during this year's CFC," said Col. Scott Bethel, 17th Training Wing commander. "The fact that we not only surpassed our goal, but did so in a very short period of time, shows that these servicemembers truly believe in giving back to their communities. A job extremely well done!"

The new physical training uniform will become mandatory for all Air Force personnel starting Oct. 1.

Other uniform changes include returning to the U.S. insignia with circle for the service dress uniform and the deletion of the optional shoulder board rank for the blue uniform, making the sleeve chevrons mandatory.

The date for mandatory wear of chevrons on the sleeves is Oct. 1 and the implementation date for the circled insignia is Jan. 1, 2007, Air Force officials said. (Information courtesy of Air Force Print News.)

Hunting Safety Paramount

With hunting season in full swing and running through January, there are ten commandments of shooting safety that every hunter needs to abide by.

1. Always point the muzzle in a safe direction. Do not point a firearm or bow at anything you do not intend to shoot. Control the direction of the muzzle at all times. Never rest a muzzle on your toe or foot. Keep your finger off the trigger until the instant you are ready to fire; however, the safety should never substitute for safe firearms handling.

2. Treat every firearm or bow with the same respect you would show a loaded weapon. Every time you pick up a firearm, the first thing you should do is control the muzzle and check to see if it is loaded. Be sure the chamber and magazine are empty and that the action is open until ready to be fired.

3. Be sure of your target and what is in front of and behind your target. Before you pull the trigger you must properly identify game animals. Use binoculars, and know what is in front of and behind your target. Determine that you have a safe backstop or background. Since you do not know what is on the other side, never shoot at animals on top of ridges or hillsides. Never shoot at flat, hard surfaces, such as rocks, water or steel because of ricochets.

4. Unload firearms and unstring conventional bows when not in use. Leave actions open and store sporting arms in cases when traveling to and from shooting areas. Take bolts out or break down shotguns if necessary. Store and transport firearms and ammunition separately and under lock and key. Use gun or trigger locks and guards when not in use.

5. Handle firearms, arrows and ammunition carefully. Avoid horseplay with firearms. Never climb a fence, tree or ladder with a loaded firearm or bow and arrows. Never face or look down the barrel from the muzzle end. Be sure the only ammunition you carry correctly matches the gauge or caliber you are shooting.

6. Know your safe zone-of-fire and stick to it. Your safe zone-of-fire is that area or direction in which you can safely fire a shot. It is "down range" at a shooting facility. In the field it is that mental image you draw in your mind with every step you take. Never swing your weapon out of your safe zone-of-fire. When hunting, wear daylight fluorescent orange so you can be seen from a distance or in heavy cover.

7. Control your emotions when it comes to safety. If you lose control of your emotions you may do something carelessly. If you have just shot a target or animal you will probably be excited. At that moment you may turn with a loaded firearm back toward your friends or you might turn with a loaded firearm toward a downed animal with the gun safety off. You or someone else may be in danger once you lose control of your emotions. Show restraint and pass up shots which have the slightest chance of being unsafe.

8. Wear hearing and eye protection. While shooting at the range, you must wear hearing and eye protection at all times. It can be a gradual loss of hearing due to outbursts of noise over many years. The damage could also be immediate, especially if the ears are right next to a muzzle blast.

9. Don't drink alcohol or take drugs before or while handling firearms. Alcohol and drugs impair normal physical and mental body functions and must not be used before or while handling firearms or archery equipment. These substances affect emotions, making it easier to lose control.

10. Be aware of additional circumstances which require added caution or safety awareness. Just because something isn't listed under these "ten commandments of shooting safety" doesn't mean you can ignore it if it is dangerous. Practice all of these commandments, plus common sense to ensure a safe future for you, others and the sport of shooting.

Every hunter, (including out-of-state hunters) born on or after Sept. 2, 1971, must successfully complete a Hunter Education Training Course. The minimum age of certification is 12 years and the cost for all ages is $10.

New Crossroads facility opens

BY 2ND LT. JENNIFER LEE

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The new Crossroads Student Ministry Center, which relocated to Building 3201 on Kearney Boulevard across from the commissary, is now open for business.

The facility, previously an MTL office, is "one small way to express freedom of religion" as described by Col. Andrew Britschgi, 17th Training Wing vice commander, during the ribbon-cutting ceremony Sept. 21. It is also a "commitment of wing leadership to your quality of life," he expressed to the enlisted students in the crowd.

The new and improved Crossroads is indeed a statement of appreciation for Goodfellow's enlisted students. The facility contains new equipment, such as an air hockey table and even a Bowflex® workout system for the fitness enthusiast. Students may lounge in the comfortable couches and watch TV on a monster screen, study test materials with classmates, or talk to an on-site representative from Family Readiness and Support about finances. The Cyber Café, under construction, will provide computer access in the near future.

The old location was inadequate to serve the needs of students. According to 1st Lt. (Chap.) Martin S. Barnes, approximately 450,000 students were served at the previous facility in 2005. In order to meet demands, the chapel staff knew that they needed a bigger place and newer equipment.

Thanks to a $10,000 grant from the Chief of Chaplains office at Bowling Air Force Base in Washington D.C., the staff was able to accomplish much. "We had an idea of what we needed as new because some of the stuff from the old Crossroads was too used and old. For other things, we just did a 'what do we think would be good in there,'" described Tech Sgt. John D. Kittles, NCOIC of Chapel Operations.

The center is run primarily by students who wear white ropes, which signify those who are trained chapel leaders. A chaplain supervises overall operations but mainly it is the white ropes who maintain and oversee the facility in shifts they sign up for voluntarily.

The hours of operation are weekdays, from 5:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. for A shift students; 12:30 a.m. to 2:30 a.m. for B shift. The facility is open Saturdays from 12:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Sunday hours are noon to 5:30 p.m.

Airman 1st Class Mitchel Fowler, Crossroads volunteer and white rope, believes the new center will have a positive impact on his fellow students. "It's a really good place for students to come and relax, get away from the stresses of tech school," he described. "New students should come. We can show them what tech school's about and play a little air hockey," he said with a smile.

Tech. Sgt. Carol Champ helps 1st Lt. Saun Zabel (right) prepare some deployment gear by checking the size of a desert camouflage uniform hat Tuesday at the Vance Deployment Center. Lt. Zabel is scheduled to deploy to the Joint Forces Command in Norfolk, Va. for six months with a possibility to forward deploy to another location.

UDMs get them ready

BY AIRMAN 1ST CLASS LUIS LOZA GUTIERREZ

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Each year, hundreds of service men and women are deployed from Goodfellow to various locations around the globe, executing and serving in a multitude of functions and operations in defense of our nation. However, these deployments could not be accomplished as smoothly without the help of the select men and women known as the UDM, or unit deployment managers.

"The UDM is an additional duty in most squadrons, however I feel it is one of the most important positions in the Air Force, said Tech. Sgt. Carol Champ, 17th Training Support Squadron UDM. "Due to the current world situation, we are deploying personnel all over the world, and the UDM has the responsibility to ensure our personnel are ready to go."

"It really is an awesome job," she added.

There are approximately 45 UDMs (primary and alternates) assigned to Goodfellow. This includes the Goodfellow NCO Academy and the Air Force Element in Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

According to Sgt. Champ, officially, a UDM must be appointed in writing by the unit commander and have 18 months retainability.

Unit deployment managers do a number of things to help their unit members prepare for their deployments. They gather uniform and equipment items for their unit deployees, and coordinate and document training.

"One of the most important roles of a UDM is to ensure the unit Aerospace Expeditionary Force Reporting Tool Unit Type Code reflects correct and current information," said Master Sgt. Sean Wade, 17th Training Wing Plans superintendent and 17 TRW Staff UDM. "The AEF Center and major commands use this report to fill deployment taskings."

Both Sgts. Wade and Champ agree that the pre-deployment preparation of servicemembers can, at times, be very time consuming.

"It really depends on the deployee and the tasking, said Tech. Sgt. Champ.

"On average, I probably spend four or five hours from start to finish. However, personnel deploying for the first time may require more attention and direction."

The extra hours of work do little to waver the spirit of dedication and hard work of UDMs like Sgts. Wade and Champ, a spirit perhaps best captured with the following statements by the two UDMs.

"There are times when the UDM position becomes extremely busy, but the thank you's that I receive from the personnel returning home make it all worth while," said Sgt. Champ.

Sergeant Wade echoed her thoughts.

"Even though UDM duties sometimes take a good amount of time, you feel good knowing you had a small hand in getting people prepared to do what we do...fight and win wars," he concluded.

Beerfest

Today

Paul Soter and Erik Stolhanske star in this R-rated film. When American brothers Todd and Jan Wolfhouse travel to Germany to spread their grandfather's ashes at Oktoberfest, they stumble upon a super-secret, centuries old, underground beer games competition- "Beerfest," the secret Olympics of beer drinking. The brothers receive a less than warm welcome from their German cousins, who humiliate and cast them out of the event. The Wolfhouse boys assemble a dream team of beer drinkers and gamers, vowing to return in a year to defend their country and their family's honor.

Saturday and Thursday

Justin Long and Blake Lively star in this fim rated PG-13. High school senior Bartleby "B" Gaines is on his way to scoring eight out of eight rejection letters from colleges, which isn't going to go over big with Mom and Dad. At least he's not alone in the exclusion. Several of his crew of outcast friends are in the same, college-less boat. So how does a guy facing a bleak career please his parents and get noticed by dream girl Monica? Simple. Open his own university.

How to Eat Fried Worms

Sunday at 6 p.m.

Luke Benward and Adam Hicks star in this PG rated film. Billy's fears are realized in his first moments at a new school when the old adage -- everybody picks on the new kid -- appears to be true. When the school bully Joe and his band of 5th grade followers put worms in Billy's lunch, Billy surprises them all when he stands up to and embarrasses Joe. This leads the two to make a bet: on Saturday Billy must eat 10 worms by 7 p.m.

A POW's story and message

Airman 1st Class
Luis Loza Gutierrez

Retired Lt. Col Larry Chesley, who volunteers at the Goodfellow Library, recently spoke to an audience about his seven-year experience as a prisoner of war during the Vietnam War.

More than 200 people of various ages were in attendance Saturday at the Christoval Latter Day Saints Chapel. The event was free of charge.

Lt. Col. Chesley spoke about how he sustained his faith and courage despite illness, starvation and poor treatment as a POW.

Although Chesley's overall speech had a solemn appeal, the oral presentation was received with a light sense by several attentive audience members, thanks in part to his wholesome sense of humor and unique story-telling style.

Chesley provided the audience with small anecdotes about how he and other POWs used to communicate with one another in creative ways, like tapping on prison walls. An even more interesting fact was that it was the same tapping on the walls that helped him to learn other languages like Spanish and French during his time in prison.

"If you could make noise, you can make messages," said the gray-haired Vietnam veteran, with a light smile on his face.

He recalled the day he and 599 other POWs were liberated, and how they ate everything in their sight, including the tale of 140 POWs eating more than 60 gallons of ice cream in one day at the a military chow hall.

As expected, Chesley's anecdotes were also filled with unpleasant memories. His wife had divorced him during his imprisonment, fellow brothers in arms he had entered the war with had died; the struggle to create a new life was upon him.

Although Chesley has lived through a considerable amount of suffering and ill experiences in his life, he still looks on others with kind eyes, whether they are a friend or stranger.

From this writer's point of view, Lt. Col. Chesley carries in him a wise, caring and forgiving spirit.

A spirit perhaps no-better-represented than by the response he gives to the most frequently asked question he gets from those who listen to his story.

The question: "How much do you hate the Vietnamese?"

To which he replies, "I don't have room for hate. The Vietnamese soldiers did what their government asked them to do. The same way I was asked by mine."

And as Karen Mitchell, a base librarian here, once typed in an invitation for this same presentation, the message in Chesley's story is one that, undoubtedly "stirred the patriotic pride of everyone who attended."

AAFES Gift Cards Benefit More Than Just the Recipient

By LISA GUERRA

ARMY AIR FORCE EXCHANGE SERVICE

Americans love gift cards. In fact, industry analysts say that nationwide sales doubled over the past five years and are expected to hit $72.8 billion in 2006.

As usual, families at Goodfellow are right in step with their civilian counterparts, steadily increasing their demand for convenient Army & Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) gift cards. And why not? From the purchaser, to the recipient, to military Morale, Welfare and Recreation programs that ultimately benefit from exchange patronage, AAFES gift cards meet the entire military community's needs.

"I like to say that BX gift cards work three times harder than any other," said AAFES Manager Patricia Tinker. "They not only make purchases easy, but also ensure the recipient gets exactly what he or she wants at the best possible price while generating much needed revenue for MWR programs. The bottom line is that all gift cards are not created equal."

While other cards may look similar to AAFES', there can be differences in fees and expiration dates. In fact, the FDIC advises that some outlets charge for purchasing or even using their gift cards, while others impose expiration dates on use. AAFES limits military families' potential for risk with gift cards that never expire and are only subject to a small $2 monthly fee after 24 consecutive months of non-use.

The patriotically inspired cards, available in red, white and blue, can be used the same as cash at AAFES facilities around the world. To find out more about the AAFES Gift Card, see any cashier at the Goodfellow BX or log on to aafes.com or call 1-888-481-1550.

Domestic Violence Awareness Month

By KAREN BARTHOLOMEO

FAMILY ADVOCACY OUTREACH MANAGER

Each year during the month of October domestic violence programs across the country commemorate the lives of victims of domestic violence to raise awareness about the issue of domestic violence. The goal is to educate the public about the effects of domestic violence on families and to find ways in which we can all work together to promote safety and eliminate domestic violence in our communities.

Across the country, advocates for victims of domestic violence are joining with survivors, public officials, and others to participate in a wide variety of activities that publicize this important issue.

These activities are as varied and diverse as the program sponsors, but have common themes: mourning those who have died because of domestic violence, celebrating those who have survived, and connecting those who work to end violence.

In October 1987, the first Domestic Violence Awareness Month was observed. That same year the first national toll-free hotline was launched. In 1989 the first Domestic Violence Awareness Month Commemorative Legislation was passed by the U.S. Congress.

Domestic violence transcends all ethnic, racial and socioeconomic boundaries. Its perpetrators abuse their victims both physically and mentally, and the effects of their attacks are far-reaching, weakening the very core of our communities.

Please take a few moments to review the activities that are taking place in the area and learn what you can do to help eradicate abuse and violence within the home and community. Working together we can make a difference.

Junk Yard Dogs named 2006 GFL Champions

By AIRMAN 1ST CLASS LUIS LOZA GUTIERREZ

STAFF WRITER

The 17th Mission Support Group Junk Yard Dogs were named 2006 Goodfellow Flag Football League Champions after the Fire Dawgs from the 312th Training Squadrons forfeited the championship by not showing up to play.

"We were looking forward to playing the game, and the forfeit just makes me hungrier to coming back next season and actually play for the championship," expressed Matt Moses, JYD starting offensive lineman and one of three team captains.

Although the title of GFL champions may not have been achieved exactly the way some JYD players may of wanted, few would argue that the Junk Yard didn't earn it.

At the beginning of the season Bo Westbrooks, JYD head coach, said the Dogs were looking forward to taking a big bite out of the season, and that he expected his team to reclaim the championship they had previously won in 2004.

"Our team is hungry, and you know a dog has to get its bone," said Coach Westbrooks.

The dogs proved their coach a prophet by finishing the season with an impressive 15-1 record. Their only loss of the season came in Game 3 to their arch rivals the Fire Dawgs, who they still managed to defeat twice in real play. (Game 6 in the regular season and in the third round of the playoffs)

"We had a diverse, talented and dedicated team. There was a nice balance of youth, experience, strength, a lot of speed and intelligence," added "Big Bo."

Diverse the team was indeed. More than a dozen players represented 12 different organizations on base, which included 17th Services Division, 17 MSG, 17th Mission Support Squadron, 17th Contracting Squadron and the Goodfellow Commissary and base exchange.

The 17th Comptroller Squadron along with four offices under the 17th Training Wing Staff were also represented on the team. They were from public affairs, protocol and the chapel and legal offices.

The team had plenty of talent with eight players selected to the first ever GFL Pro Bowl.

Among them was veteran-quarterback Charlie Rehburg who passed for 2,361 yards and 40 touchdowns in the regular season. He also finished 6th in league in rushing with 315 yards on 25 attempts.

The seven other pro bowlers were veterans John Inman, Nick Kolesnikov, Matt Moses, Bo Westbrooks, Josh Cavaness and JYD new comers Davon Perry and Brian Samuel.

The team's season was also highlighted by big defensive plays by players like Brian Henry, Omar Matos and Joshua Swisher who in one game had two interceptions and ran back one for a touchdown.

Brothers Eric and Brian Stansbury, Sin K Won and Heather Smith were always ready to provide fresh legs at a moment's notice, creating constant defensive pressure for opposing QBs to release the ball earlier than anticipated, which usually resulted in a turnover for opponents.

Brian Williams, a newcomer to the Dogs added extra defensive pressure on opposing team taller receivers and snagged a few catches.

Another JYD newcomer was Ross Davis, who did it all this season. The young financial officer made plays on both sides of the ball by playing both offense and defense. His dependable soccer leg was also put to good use as the team's starting kicker and punter.

The Junk Yard dogs defeated opponents by an average of 24.3 points. (Game 3 loss and championship game not included)

But this season wasn't about getting stats.

"The stats were a bi-product of our team's focus to win ball games," said Mr. Moses.

"This season was about playing together as a team towards a common goal, like troops with a mission. And next season our goal will be to repeat as champs, because there is plenty of fight left in us dogs and we are still hungry," concluded Coach Westbrooks.
